SPLENDID SHOWING ON SUNDAY

Irish hearts in Louisville beat high with religious and patriotic fervor, and Irish eyes grew dim while listening to the praises of Ireland's great apostle on St. Patrick's day, the feast linked indissolubly with memories of home to the Irish exile, and with loving thoughts of his descendants for that beautiful and unhappy land that gave to the Catholic church so many saints and to history's pages tales of dauntless, if futile, daring for Ireland's freedom. Silvery-toned orators graced many of the city's pulpits, and St. Louis Bertrand's, St. Patrick's Sacred Heart, St. Michael's, St. Agnes and other churches, where panegyrics of the great saint were sounded through the vaulted aisles, were thronged with representatives of the Irish race, who were charmed with the musical numbers rendered by the various choirs.

The day dawned clear and bright, as though St. Patrick had smiled on the city. The public celebration was conducted by Division 4, A. O. H., and most creditably was it done. The parade that preceded the religious services at St. Louis Bertrand's church, marshaled by James McKelvie, John J. Barry and T. J. Langan, was large and dignified and imparted the spirit of the occasion to the thousands that lined the streets along the route of march. The people of the city quite generally were green in some form, and throughout Louisville many houses were decorated with the Stars and Stripes and green bannery of the Emerald Isle, the harp and shamrock. After the marchers had traversed Oak, Seventh, Broadway and Sixth streets they attended the solemn high mass at St. Louis Bertrand's, where elaborate ceremonies had been prepared by the pastor, the Rev. Father T. L. Crowley, O. P. Beautiful decorations adorned the altars and the green vestments of the priests and white surpliced acolytes blended in with the picture of the sanctuary with its flower decked and brilliantly lighted altars. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Father Blaxter, who eulogized St. Patrick, the patron of the apostle, the saint and conqueror, and then spoke of Ireland, long and suffering, beautiful Erin, the land of triumph, glory and sorrow; a people throwing off hate and enduring persecution with a constancy unparalleled in the history of the world. Following the church services the vast throng gathered in the school yard, where John H. Hennessy, president of Division 4, formally presented a beautiful silk American flag to the children of St. Louis Bertrand's school. The flag was run up and accepted by Rev. Father Crowley, who delivered a most patriotic address.

The entertainment at night under the auspices of Division 4 was the most successful attempted here for years, standing room being at a premium at Bertrand Hall. County President William J. Connelly presided, and excellent comedians were rendered by Misses Alcen Zix, Margaret Horan, Margaret Casperson, Rena Eckert and Mayme Geering, and Messrs. Thomas Larnier, John J. Flynn, Walter T. Barrett, James Curran, Jr., John M. Hennessy, Walter Pilsner and Louis Hoffman, all of whom received hearty encores.

Attorney J. J. Kavanagh was the orator of the evening and his words were frequently interrupted by rounds of applause. In part he said:

"This is a great day for Ireland. Her dream of 700 years seems about to be realized. If you study the crisis in Europe you will see that the destiny of Ireland is about to be realized through the efforts of Germany. Germany is knocking at the door of Ireland's nationhood. Germany is fighting the war of the world's democracy. Germany is throwing down the challenge to England's supremacy of the sea and saying to every wage serf, to every nation crushed by oppression, 'The hour is come.' It has been stated that Ireland is loyal to England. I deny that statement. In the name of 300,000 members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, in the name of the Catholic press and in the name of the American press that is not subsidized by English money or controlled by Englishmen—and Lord Northcliffe alone controls eighteen papers in America—I say that Ireland is not loyal to England. Ireland is loyal to her own people. Ireland is loyal to 700 years of history. Ireland is loyal to truth and honor. For her to be loyal to England would be to turn her back on 700 years of glorious history. You can not trade away Ireland's integrity, national honor and 700 years of glorious history for the mess of pottage called home rule."

Sunday morning the Ancient Order and Ladies' Auxiliary as a whole paid religious tribute to St. Patrick, their patron, at St. Patrick's church, where solemn high mass was sung by the Very Rev. James P. Cronin, V. G., County Chaplain of the Hibernians, who presented an edifying sight as the long lines of men and women approached the altar to receive holy communion. Father Cronin heartily welcomed the Ancient Order to his parish in behalf of his people and himself. In an eloquent and forceful sermon Father Cronin paid a glorious tribute to Ireland's great apostle and patron, from whose sainted life he drew many valuable lessons as much needed today by Ireland's sons. In this day of religious liberty, as in the old, stormy days of persecution, when the Irish race gave its best in defense of its most valued possession—its Catholic faith.

"A notable occasion worthy celebration," might fittingly epitomize Louisville's observance of St. Patrick's day.

MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN.

Trinity Council, Y. M. C. E., plans to start a campaign for new members, and its subject will be a special order of business for next Monday evening. President B. J. Sandmann having called the meeting for 7:30 sharp. Chairman John Hennessy, of the Literary Committee, announced at the meeting Monday evening that the lecture to have been given by Rev. Father O'Mahoney next Monday evening has been postponed to a later date. The Trinity ball team is now in course of training and will practice at Lutz Park tomorrow morning. Those desirous of making the team are requested to be present. It was also announced at the meeting Monday evening that the bowling alleys will be started next week, four to be erected in the basement, and promises are made that they will be the best equipped in the South. This feature should prove popular at Trinity, many bowling devotees being members of the Council.

NEW SECRETARY OF WAR.
Newton D. Baker, former Mayor of Cleveland, Ohio, recently appointed by the President.

CARDINAL GIBBONS.

His Eminence Cardinal Gibbons arrived in New Orleans on Wednesday, on his annual visit to his brother, John T. Gibbons, and members of his family. The Cardinal was accompanied by his secretary, Rev. Louis Donovan, who is also an assistant priest at the Baltimore Cathedral. It was expected that he would arrive in New Orleans a week earlier, but it has been his custom for years to spend St. Joseph's day, March 19, with the old people at the Home of the Little Sisters of the Poor in Baltimore, and this year he would make no exception to this beautiful and thoughtful ruling.

AND THEY WILL NOT.

The Guardians of Liberty have not yet organized a company to go to Mexico, but the Pennsylvania Hibernians have offered two whole regiments. Watch the secret patriotic orders "duck" when "tramp, tramp, tramp, the boys are marching," is heard.

HUTCHCRAFT

Liquor Law Bill Now a Continual Worry to the State Administration.

City Officials Will Only Accept a Court Construction of Law.

A Summary of the Vote on Prohibition Measures in Both Houses.

THE LIQUOR MEN IMPOSED UPON

Like Banquo's ghost, that would not stay down, the Hutchcraft liquor law bill bobs up continuously before the State administration leaders, resulting in conferences here and there, legal opinions of Attorney General, City Attorneys and special attorneys being sought to make the law less obnoxious, but above all to stop the storm of protests flying about the ears of Gov. Stanley and other present State Democratic leaders. During the time the bill was before the General Assembly many of the original Stanley men throughout the State openly endorsed the measure, the liquor men nearly as a whole lobbying for its passage, and the Courier-Journal and Times both told how much credit Gov. Stanley deserved for supporting this measure, crying "shame" on anyone who dared oppose it. The Haldeman organs went still further, intimating that the passage of the bill here would divorce the saloonkeeper and liquor men from politics and that the Democratic leaders, especially in this district, would be separated from the unholy alliance of liquor politicians. The little fry among the original Stanley contingent here chortled with glee and were telling one another how the measure would embarrass Mayor Buschmeyer and the present city administration. But to, and behold, just as soon as the Mayor clamped down the lid with a vengeance an awful howl went up, first from the little fry, then from the liquor men, and finally from the Courier-Journal and Times, both papers claiming that the law was not meant to be so severe and that the Mayor and police should be more lenient.

The Kentucky Irish American has contended throughout that there was no necessity for the liquor agitation or worry during the recent session and that the powers that be, meaning the State administration, could have put a quietus on that agitation whenever desired, and that the liquor men who lobbied for the Hutchcraft bill were only pulling political chestnuts out of the fire for aspiring politicians. If questioned as to their reasons for supporting the measure liquor lobbyists will tell you that they only did this in self-defense, as they had been told by the administration leaders that they would have to accept the Hutchcraft bill or worse, meaning by the latter the Greene bill. Now as a proof of the contention made all along in these columns that there was no danger of State-wide prohibition, if Gov. Stanley was still loyal to the liquor interests, and by that loyalty ready to veto any prohibition measure, the following figures given by a member of the Legislature to a representative of this paper are conclusive. And to make it more forcible he says that he is giving the widest latitude possible to the dry men—in fact giving every doubtful vote in both houses.

In the Legislature the vote on a bill that only inclined to prohibition, like the county unit, for instance, would have been sixty-five dry and thirty-five wet. In the same body on a State-wide prohibition bill, without any strings tied to it, the vote would have been fifty-six dry and forty-four wet, or only a majority of twelve. To pass any measure in the lower house over the Governor's veto it would have taken sixty-seven votes, more than the prohibitionists could have been able to muster on any measure. In the Senate on a bill as referred to in the first instance, one only with prohibition tendencies, the vote would have been twenty-two dry and sixteen wet. On the State-wide question the vote would have been twenty wet and eighteen dry, losing on a straight vote in the upper body, the Governor's veto not being necessary. But in the event it did pass and was vetoed by Gov. Stanley it would have taken twenty-six votes to pass the bill over his veto—in other words, a practical impossibility. The significance of this is gradually dawning on some of the liquor men who allowed themselves to be lured at the recent session, and the more they realize how they were deceived, the more they are determined to get the bill passed. Hence the hurried trips to and from Frankfort to appease their wrath. As for the excuse that it was intended to punish Newport and Covington, that is too absurd to consider. Those towns, if offending, could have been reached easily enough with the laws already on the statute books.

One of the closing features of the sessions in the Senate was the punishment meted out to Senator George Speer of Frankfort, the Governor's right-hand hower, by our own Senator Sam Robertson. Early in the session Senator Speer took it upon himself to oppose every measure the Louisville delegation supported for this district, attempting to kill the bill drafted for clerical help in County Attorney Scott Bullitt's office, and introducing a measure preventing the Mayor of Louisville from becoming President of the Louisville Water Company, this being aimed at Mayor Buschmeyer. But it's a long lane that has no turn, and when the latter part of the session rolled around Senator Robertson, by his antagonistic position on the Rules Committee, saw to it that Speer's pet measures were stifled in the committee room. Speer raved and stormed, calling on the Governor for help, but all to no avail, and when the Senate adjourned the senior Senator of the district had paid the Frankfort Senator with compound interest.

MOURN HER DEATH.

In the death of Mrs. Sarah Straus, widow of Herman Straus, founder of the large Herman Straus & Sons department store, who was called to her eternal reward early Wednesday morning, Jewish circles and the city lost a most devoted member, a true and lovable woman, generous to a fault and of pleasing personality. Mrs. Straus was stricken suddenly with appendicitis on St. Patrick's day and was taken to St. Joseph's Infirmary, and to the shock of the operation's attributed her death. The funeral, which was held Thursday afternoon, was largely attended, and a tender tribute to the deceased. A member of Adath Israel Temple and the Sisterhood of Adath Israel, Mrs. Straus took a deep interest in church and charitable work, making no distinction because of race or creed. Five children are bereaved by the death of their mother. They are Eugene J. Straus, Secretary of Herman Straus & Sons Company; Bertram H. Straus, Treasurer for the firm; Albert I. Straus, a buyer; Mrs. Walter I. Kohn, wife of the Vice President, and Miss Lena Straus, to whom is tendered the sympathy of the community.

HEBREW PRIZE CHAPLAIN.

Hebrew Veterans of the war with Spain have adopted these appropriate resolutions on the death of the Rev. W. H. I. Reaney, who was highest ranking chaplain of the United States navy. The resolutions say that Father Reaney, as chaplain of the navy, "instilled the flame of his healing presence; as chaplain of the United States War Veterans he cheered the widows and orphans of the country's departed defenders with his ministrations and succored them with his worldly goods; and as a faithful friend of this society he showed by dint of precept and deed the folly of erecting the barriers of the hatred of race, and bigotry of creed among his fellows, making his life a symphony of simplicity, service and sacrifice."

GOD NEEDS MEN

Infusing the Mind of the One
True Church Into Social Body.

Man's Place on Earth and His Mission in All Human Relations.

Anyone Who Wants Can Know
All About the Catholic Church.

SCIENCE HANDMAID OF RELIGION

—Anyone who wants to, writes Rev. Peter B. Dietz, can know all about the church. She has spoken her mind plainly. The libraries of the world are full of her records and her living word solicits the audience of a universe. Several hundred millions of men read her doctrine, listen to her voice and profess to lead her life. There is much vanity in human nature and it has a strong penchant to frivolity; there is also much earnestness in man and sincere ambition to co-operate with God in redeeming the human race. Earnest men never find the church wanting. They ask questions of the church and the church answers their questions. These questions pertain to man's place on earth and his mission in all human relations. The church answers them all without equivocation. Some say the church is too ready to answer questions and too summary in her answers, and the while they say so they have one or both eyes on everything except the church. Physical and social science readily talk to many questions, but God have mercy upon the men that depend conclusively on their partial and half-truths. Catholics shall not be classed among them. They have the fullness and surety of truth. It is a wonderful grace and the sweetness of it is overpowering. To procreate the human race and to provide for its needs are the two great normal functions of society. The church has very definite views as to preparation for marriage, conduct in marriage, the rearing of children and the provision of a living wage. Why do not all who invoke the Christian name rally to the standard of these positive, true and unchangeable views?

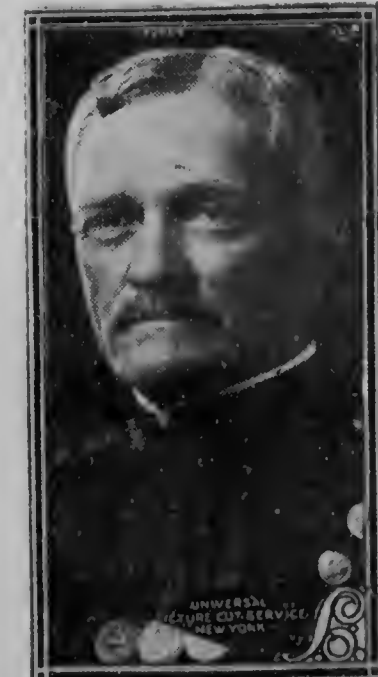

Socialism is the blatant spokesman of materialism; eugenism advocates inhuman, aye, even unhumanly violence of nature's law; feminism is an alternating current, reversing no progress; secularism would extinguish every star in the skies; Protestantism has made religion a reproach; economics leads the procession of the golden calf worshippers. The dust of the eyes, the lust of the flesh and the pride of life, have made and kept men ignorant, weak and not at all God-like. Why in all the world should Catholics share their ignorance, lust, lucre and damnation? Ever and anon are Catholics called upon to meet the issues of the world, the flesh and the devil.

When will the American atmosphere be cleared of the contamination reeking from the filth of the Christian and anti-Christian pest-philosophies? Must we waste everlastingly up to our souls into their miasmic mires? Why always give our enemies the choice of weapons? Let us fling our challenge, raise our minds to the God of the high heavens, shout louder than they, fight more bravely, and die, if we must, on Christian soil hallowed with the blood of martyrs. Martyrs! With unspeakable tenderness the holy church clasps untold millions of them to her bosom—martyrs of truth, of faith, of virtue! With the red martyr blood of age-long Christian ogenic selection in our veins, how great is not our contempt of the calf-brained, loose-jointed, lick-spittle sham-Catholic, preaching "safety first" whenever his hide, family ambitions and economic prospects are at stake? Those who know and appreciate the mind of the church, more than ever need to infuse it into the body social and politics. Knowledge is not enough; to it must be added power, the power of parliamentary action and thorough organization. Again and again we look to the American Federation of Catholic Societies to develop organized power to make the nation throbb with the hum of Christian ideals. Tolerance to weak human nature with all its "isms," yes! Tolerance of materialism, secularism, socialism, feminism, paganism, never!

SENATOR TAGGART.

Thomas H. Taggart, one of the most prominent men of Indiana and the recognized leader of the Democratic party in that State, was this week named by Gov. Ralston as his successor of the late Senator Shively, who died in Washington. Senator Taggart has had a remarkable career, and by integrity and industry has risen from a poor boy to a position of honor and influence that extends over the entire country. Thomas Taggart was born in the County Monaghan, Ireland, fifty-nine years ago. He was educated at Xenia, Ohio, in 1861, where he attended the Xenia schools and worked there for a railroad. He located in Indianapolis in 1877, taking employment in a restaurant at the Union Station. He was elected County Auditor in 1886 and re-elected four years later. He served three terms as Mayor of Indianapolis, concluding his services in 1901. He was Chairman of the State Central Committee in 1892 and 1894. He has been National Committeeman since 1900, and was National Chairman in 1904.

BRIG. GEN. PERSHING.
Placed in command of the expedition to capture Villa, the Mexican bandit.

REQUEST FOR CHARITY.

After disposing of personal effects to her relative Helen C. Smith, by her will admitted to probate in the County Court on Tuesday, leaves ninety-four acres of land in Bullitt county, near Shepherdsville, to the Bishop of the Louisville diocese for the purpose of the establishment of an industrial school for poor and neglected boys. The testatrix asserts that if the Bishop deems this project not advisable he may use it for some other charitable institution. Should he deem it best not to establish any institution on the farm, the testatrix directs that it be sold and the proceeds divided between the Little Sisters of the Poor conducting the Home for Aged People and the Sisters of the Good Shepherd. The farm is valued at about $4,000. The Fidelity & Columbia Trust Company was appointed administrator of the estate with the will annexed. The instrument is dated May 29, 1915.

MEN'S SOCIETY MASS.

Sunday morning at St. Helen's church the Rev. John B. Pfeiffer sang the solemn high mass in honor of the anniversary of the St. Joseph's Men's Society of that congregation. There was a full turnout and the members made their Easter communion.

"PATRIOTS"

Francisco Villa and American
Anti-Catholics Once in Brotherly Communion.

The People Are Now Beginning to Realize His Abhorrent Character.

His Incursion Into New Mexico
Shatters Beautiful Day Dream.

MAY BRING US GREAT TROUBLE

The American people are now beginning to realize the true character of Francisco Villa and of the other "saviors of humanity" below the Rio Grande, who have been so long reposing in the good graces of Washington. They should have come to this realization months ago, for the acts of the bandits in the Southern Republic spoke for themselves. No brutality, even of the most heinous nature, has been too base for these revolutionists to commit. They have burned and robbed and ravaged in the most savage fashion, they have destroyed churches through mere malice, have murdered priests and treated nuns in the most inhuman manner. They have slain in cold blood men of our own nation. To all of which we have silently and smilingly acquiesced; indeed more than that, we have actually connived in these damnable undertakings. The little excursion to Columbus, New Mexico, awakened us to some degree at least from our beautiful day dream in regard to Mexico. The attack on the town, the murder of American citizens, showed us that "watchful waiting" had been in vain. The men whom we have been peacefully allowing to run wild in that country have precipitated us into what may become a dangerous and long drawn war. Not content with killing men and women of their own nationality or of those of American and other citizenship living in their country, they have carried their bloody deeds into our land. We have cried out with pain and alarm and passionate indignation at this brutal act of Villa and his men.

It is interesting to recall in this regard that some time over a year ago this same Villa received praise and commendation from a certain "patriotic" portion of our citizenry for his alleged Mexican actions of a similar character to those which are now arousing the hatred of our people. "Alamo Court, Guardians of Liberty of Texas," was the noble body which wrote to the notorious bandit, "We are organizing a 'desires to express to you, and other patriotic Mexicans,' they said, 'our hearty approval of your actions and the great good and service you have and are rendering your people and the country. We would especially commend your actions in ridding your country of the basest of human vultures, the Catholic priesthood. Whenever women are forced to secretly confess to a man who has never married and who knows nothing of the sacredness of woman and of home, it is but natural for immorality to exist, and until this practice is stopped it is impossible to raise up a liberty loving, intelligent, patriotic, moral generation. Assure you of our appreciation of your invaluable worth to your country, and trusting that you may continue your good work until the people of your country are freed from the root of the trouble, the Roman Catholic church, in the language of the patriot, we exclaim, 'Viva Mexico by Villa.'" In replying to this most affectionate communication Villa expressed his "sincere thanks and very great pleasure" to the "honorable society" and wished that "this honorable society continue progressing every day for the welfare of humanity and of civilization." Both letters were published in the Liberator of October 22, 1914, an anti-Catholic paper of Magnolia, Ark., and were reproduced the following week in a press bulletin by the Central Bureau of the Central Verein. They are deserving of further publication now, in view of the recent developments in the Mexican situation.

What are we to really think of these "patriots" who have been going abroad in the land for the last few years, denouncing the loyalty of any one who disagreed with their narrow and perverted ideas? It seems that the houses in which they live are perilously near to being built of a substance which forbids the throwing of stones. The bloody tactics which they encouraged in Mexico are now being used against ourselves, the hated "gringos." The men whom they have lovingly saluted are turning their blood-stained weapons against our people, against our women and children, weary of the murder and ill-treatment of the women and children of their own country. In awakening to the realization of what Villa and Carranza and the other notables of the revolution really are, is it time that the American nation come to realize the character of these organizations with similar ideals existing within our own boundaries. Otherwise we are likely some day to discover as great a trouble upon us from their machinations and false teachings as the men of Mexico have brought to us at the present hour. C. B. of C. V.

WORDS OF CHEER.

Gentlemen: As one of your original subscribers, and having read all previous issues of the Kentucky Irish American, I can not refrain from congratulating you on your St. Patrick's day edition this year. The interesting reading matter and Irish historical articles could not be improved upon. With best wishes and future success to the journal that has done so much to advance the cause of Ireland and her religion, I remain, Sincerely yours, James W. Dougherty, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MEXICO.

Advices from Mexico received Thursday left little room for doubt that Mexican affairs had reached a point fraught with far-reaching and perhaps serious consequences for this country. Reports stated that all Northern Mexico was seething with open rebellion against the de facto Government and that large forces were deserting Carranza and aligning themselves with the bandit Villa. While the position of the American troops that have crossed the border remains perilous, Washington still pursues its policy of waiting and watching. The Mexicans are granted further time by the fact that our Government awaits the approval of Carranza of the operations of the American expeditionary forces. The position of the United States troops on Mexican soil are more serious than are just now admitted.

SHAKE HANDS!

The Catholic Columbian hopes that the Irish of different parties will not antagonize each other in this sorry time. They who do not agree with the New York convention, lately held in the Astor House, should applaud the dignified poise maintained in its proceedings. Grave, venerable and thoughtful friends of Ireland were there to sincerely discuss affairs of great pitch and moment. If one Irishman believes in paper bullets and the other in leaden, let them shake hands and accredit mutual good intentions and use all kinds of weapons against the common enemy of Ireland and of America—sleek, diplomatic, dishonest and cruel England.

BRITISH-AMERICANS ABSENT.

The pro-English press is decidedly opposed to hyphenated Americans of any kind because British-American heroes are conspicuously absent in the pages of our country's history. A visitor to Statuary Hall in Washington remarked that he saw statues of Gen. Custer, Sheridan, Rosecrans, Grant, Sherman, Steuben, Lafayette, Rochambeau, Pulaski, etc., men of Irish, German, French and Polish birth, and added, "I find statues of American soldiers who were hyphenates, but a man would grow extremely weary pacing up and down the country looking for a statue which commemorates the services to the United States of a single Englishman."

ASSISTING CARRANZA.

The Catholic Columbian and others of our exchanges are asking why is America sending an army to Mexico? Why does she not root the crimes of Villa to the Mexican Government that should preserve order and peace in Mexico? Carranza was recognized as Mexico's ruler; why shoot? not America be consistent and continue her recognition in demanding the results of his rule? In sending an army after some Mexican murderers, America is really helping Carranza at the expense of American blood and treasure, for only God knows when things will end. A guerilla warfare in Mexican mountains can be interminable. It is also within the range of possibility that our move may be the reason of Villa's promotion to power on the ruins of Carranza's loss of authority; for doubtless he will shout "down with the invader!"—a war cry that has more than once changed the aspect of a nation's affairs.

GOOD BILL.

Members of Congress are being appealed to by people in all sections of the country to give their support to the bill introduced by Representative

Griffin, which provides for granting indefinite leave of absence to supernumerary employees of the postal service. The effect of this bill would be to make the service more efficient, while the increased expense would be so small as to hardly be felt. Postal employees have been endeavoring for years to secure this needed change, which every member of Congress should be willing to grant.

AFTER VILLA.

The daily papers have a hard time following developments in the Mexican crisis. When the first reports were flashed throughout the country it was supposed that capture of Villa was a matter of hours. Then it became a matter of days, and finally the censorship cut off all definite information. We are left to guess what is happening on the border. Gen. Funston is right in making adequate preparation for serious work. The invasion of Mexico will be no Sunday-school picnic. We want Villa; but to get him we will have to fight all Mexico.

Catholic parents having children not attending the parochial schools should see that their charges receive the Sunday instructions. Thus they will prepare for their first holy communion.

The rioting in Ireland only vindicates the statements made by Hibernians and other Irish leaders—that Ireland is not loyal to England and will not furnish recruits for its oppressor's war.

In this fast age too many people are spending their money before they have earned it. These are usually the ones who complain most about the high cost of living.

Spring is here. A hand organ with monkey and a band is serenading the residents.

Today is the Feast of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary.

An honorable man's word is as good as his bond, and God hates a liar.

SENATOR RESIGNS.

Hon. Samuel L. Robertson, State Senator from the Thirty-eighth district, composed of the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh and Twelfth wards of this city, mailed his resignation to Gov. Stanley on Tuesday. Senator Robertson has entered upon his duties as Auditor's Agent for Jefferson county. Should an extra session of the Legislature be called it is probable that the Governor will order an election to name his successor.

GOLDEN PRIESTLY JUBILEE.

On May 16 Rev. Bernard Hillebrand, of Covington, who is eighty-five years of age, will celebrate his golden priestly jubilee. Father Hillebrand is chaplain of Villa Madonna Academy, where the jubilee celebration will be held. The venerable priest is revered as a father by the orphans of the Covington diocese, especially by the children of St. John's Asylum, where he was chaplain a number of years.

BLACKLISTS JEFFERSONVILLE.

A certain Miss Mary F. persuaded a young gentleman friend last Sunday afternoon to take her over to Jeffersonville, never having seen the sights in our sister city. Hardly had they alighted from the ferry boat when they were accosted by a matrimonial runner, who wanted to know if they didn't want to get married. Result being much confusion on the part of the young lady especially. This occurred more than once, both finally becoming as mad as Fury, so they say, and now, like the old closing lines in the old Bowery song, "They won't go there any more."

FORTY HOURS.

For the first three days of the coming week the people of St. James congregation will be given an opportunity to attend the adoration of the Blessed Sacrament, the occasion being the Forty Hour prayer services. The devotion will open with high mass and sermon tomorrow morning and continue the following two days. Rev. Father Willett, the pastor, will be assisted by a number of priests from our city churches.

ADDRESS TO MEMBERS.

Deputy Grand Knight John P. Cassidy will lecture to the members of the Knights of Columbus next Wednesday evening, his subject being "The Duties of the Officers and Committees of the Council and the Obligations of the Members." The annual retreat of the members will be given in St. Louis Bertrand church beginning Wednesday, April 5, and concluding Passion Sunday, April 9.

Friday as a St. Patrick's day exhibit. The flag, the property of Capt. John A. Geary, was made by the Irish women of Lexington, and was presented to Capt. Geary at the big Irish picnic and rally held at City's woods, near that city, in 1866. Capt. Geary was then organizing a force of Bluegrass Irishmen to join in the Fenian movement, and soon afterward proceeded North with his men, and crossing the United States border, took part in the attack on the British troops who were mobilizing at Ridgeway, Canada.

CELEBRATE BIRTHDAYS.

Thursday the Most Rev. Thomas F. Kennedy, President of the American College in Rome and recently made Archbishop, celebrated his fifty-eighth birthday. On the same day Cardinal Francis Bourne, Archbishop of Westminster, became fifty-five years old. Hope is universal that they may be spared for many years to come.

XAVERIANS.

Last Sunday, March 19, the feast of the glorious patron, St. Joseph, witnessed a most beautiful and inspiring ceremony at Mount St. Joseph's Novitiate at Baltimore, when six very promising young men were received into the Xaverian brotherhood. The vestition services began when the Rev. Father Felix, C. P., the celebrant, intoned the Veni Creator. In his address he highly encouraged the young men to be most faithful in the great work they had undertaken, telling them of the greatness of such a vocation, which consists in a very close following of the Divine Master.

PASSED AWAY SUNDAY.

Cardinal Girolamo Gotti, passed away on Sunday in Rome, having received the last rites of the church on the preceding Monday. Cardinal Gotti's decline began September 25, 1915, when in a faint he fell violently to the floor of his office, suffering a slight concussion of the brain. Since then his condition became daily worse. After the death of Pope Pius X. Cardinal Gotti was highly considered for his successor. Only his age—he was seventy-eight then—stood against him. He was born at Genoa, Italy, on March 29, 1834, and was a member of the Order of Discalced Carmelites. On his birthday in 1892 he was elected titular Archbishop of Detra and was sent as Nuncio to Brazil. Two years later he was created a Cardinal, receiving the red hat December 2, and made Prefect of the Congregation of Indulgences. Later he was made Prefect of the Propaganda, which place he held until his death.

GODSEND FOR MISSIONS.

The gift sent by the Extension Society for the missions of Bishop Dougherty, formerly of Jaro but now Bishop-elect of Buffalo, came as a godsend to those poor missions, for they are literally struggling for breath. It was a check for $1,100, and that amount will go a great way in a Philippine mission. The priests who are without chapels, and who in order that their numerous missions may have some sort of attention are anxious to secure the missionary mass outfit packed by the Catholic Church Extension Society, are in a fair way to be supplied. Seven generous friends of the missions sent in donations for as many mass outfits. There are fifteen missionary priests on the lists of the society who are anxious for one of these outfits. Donations may be sent to the offices of the Catholic Church Extension Society, McCormack building, Chicago.

BOCK BEER TODAY.

Once again the rampant billy goat with the flowing whiskers adorns the bill boards and show windows, and the shivering world is given notice that spring is about to make her debut. That is what the "Bock" means to all who are in touch with German folk-lore, and to many more who do not know anything about Castle Elmbek, where the famous brew got its name, but who know that Bock sounds mighty good to them about this time every year. The Germans have always been a poetic people and given to gladness and innocent mirth. German people found the long and cold winters tiresome and they looked for something to cheer them up. The coming of spring when they could live outdoors. They celebrated with a joyous festival the coming of spring, the festival being of an importance equal to Christmas among the modern Germans. It was at this season and on this occasion that the castle brewer was accustomed to broach a special cask of beer, the best that he knew how to make, and which had lain ripening for months in the castle cellar. Being extra good, the poet, Germain named it "Bock" beer because like the billy goat it was liable to knock over those who tampered with it.

CERTAINLY.

If the people who are worrying their heads about "chain prayers" would say the "Our Father," the "Hail Mary," etc., go to mass regularly and approach the sacraments as often as possible they would be in a healthier condition, morally and spiritually, than they are at present.

FOR WOMAN'S EYE.

The colored lawn and organdy blouse is growing in favor. Both long and short sleeves have the dropped shoulder line. Angora braid is one of the most effective of the new braids. This spring one finds the short sleeve coming into its own again. Among the smartest of the new sport suits are many of silk jersey. Tulle hats, shirred on wire frames, are pretty for midsummer wear.

It is reported from Paris that lacing will be all the vogue this spring.

Shoe top length seems preferable for the skirt. Shorter lengths are not safe.

Most stylish are the small turbans with large butterfly bow fastened at the very top of the crown.

PUT OVER GOOD ONE.

Many years ago, at Elizabeth, N. J., it was announced that all the bells of the city churches, Protestant as well as Catholic, would ring on St. Patrick's day, March 17. The rector of the Episcopal church confirmed the rumor. At once the Orange lodge and several local A. P. A. divisions met in protest and appointed committees to visit the several sextons in order to induce them to strike against ringing the bells on this Romish holiday. But without result, for it developed that March 17 of that year fell on a Sunday.

HIBERNIANS.

What They Have Been Doing the Past Week—General News Notes.

The parade this year is but a forerunner of a big turnout for next St. Patrick's day.

One of Limerick's oldest citizens, after viewing the parade, said "he could die happy now."

The address of J. J. Kavanagh, the St. Patrick's day orator, has received wide and favorable comment.

President L. J. Mackey and the members of Division 3 showed up well in both the parade and entertainment.

The residents along the line of march of all creeds and nationalities did themselves proud in the way of decorations.

The Hibernian St. Patrick's day parade at Denver was imposing and was featured by decorated automobiles and jaunting car.

The A. O. H. is indebted to the men and business firms who so kindly donated automobiles for the school children in the parade.

The Hibernians of New Haven will purchase a building at Orange and Wall streets for a club house, the price for which is $17,000.

The order in Louisville should now show a big increase in membership due to the splendid success of the St. Patrick's day celebration.

There is a big demand for pictures of the parade and flag presentation, which are on sale in the sexton's office of St. Louis Bertrand's church.

Division 4 will meet next Monday night and hear reports from the Entertainment Committee concerning the St. Patrick's day entertainment.

National and State officers and Father Donnelly, of Saratoga, were guests of the Binghamton Hibernians at their St. Patrick's day dinner.

Division 1 of Chillicothe, Ohio, has fitted up handsome club rooms. Provisions for billiards, cards, reading and other pastimes have been made.

Bishop Rhode was the chief speaker at the Hibernian banquet on St. Patrick's day at Green Bay, Wis. Covers were laid for 350 guests.

John E. Browne, of Division 4, was happy on St. Patrick's day. He had received a box of Shamrocks from Ireland and distributed them among his friends.

Because of the death of ex-National President James E. Dolan the two banquets that were to be held at Syracuse in honor of St. Patrick were indefinitely postponed.

The Ancient Order and Ladies' Auxiliary of Quincy, Ill., attended in a body the high mass celebrated by Rev. M. J. Foley, editor of the Western Catholic, in honor of Ireland's apostle.

The Slayden bill will not deter the Ladies' Auxiliary movement for the erection of a monument in the National cemetery at Washington to the Sisters who lost their lives nursing the soldiers during the civil war.

The Kentucky Irish American is pleased to acknowledge the receipt of an invitation from Chairman M. J. McDermott to be the guest of the Hibernians of Mobile at their St. Patrick's day celebration and banquet, which surpassed any ever before held in the South.

HELPS FATHER LYNCH.

Rev. Cletus Brady, C. P., rector of the Sacred Heart Retreat on the Newburg road, was in Henderson this week, where he assisted Rev. Father Lynch at the Forty Hour devotions at Holy Name church.

NOTRE DAME.

St. Patrick's day was celebrated at Notre Dame University in the usual manner. After a solemn high mass in the morning the band situated in the rotunda of the main building rendered a concert of Irish airs. After the noon-day feast the University Dramatic Club presented a three-act comedy in Washington Hall.
